Investment Objective

The Fund mainly invests its assets into various types of exchange traded index funds (ETF) that invest their assets in both fixed income and stock markets. The Fund pursues a systematic rebalanced core-satellite investment strategy. The core investments consist of passive, market-value-weighted exchange traded funds, whereas the satellite investments consist of non-market-value-weighted investments.

The share of stock-based investments in the Fund may vary between 65 and 100 percent. In a neutral market situation, the share of stock-based investments is 85 percent. The investments are efficiently diversified both geographically and between various asset classes.

Asset Allocation

Investment Strategy

Obsido Rebalanced 85 Fund suits for investors who aim at moderately to higher capital growth with a long-term perspective. The investor accepts that the value of their investment may vary during the investment period in pursuit of better long-term gains. The Fund mainly invests in ETFs which allows the Fund to allocate its assets i.a. to stocks and interest-based investments such as corporate bonds and debenture stocks. In neutral market situation, 85 % of the assets are allocated to stock-based investments and respectively 15 % to interest-based investments.

Fund assets are effectively diversified between asset classes as well as within them. The investment strategy does not rely on prognosticating market fluctuations or changes in macroeconomics. On the contrary, the strategy concentrates on matters it actually can affect which is practising efficient and disciplined investment policy. The aforementioned investment style will be the core of the strategy also in future since it is believed to return the investor the best possible long-term gain.
